Arkamys provides support to OLPC

Arkamys is currently working with the One Laptop Per Child (OLPC) organization. As described in their mission statement, the OLPC organization aims to "create educational opportunities for the world's poorest children by providing each child with a rugged, low-cost, low-power, connected laptop with content and software designed for collaborative, joyful, self-empowered learning". Thus the OLPC movement is as much about the provision of the laptops, known as the XO, as it is about the community of people working to make the educational platform, known as Sugar.

Arkamys has provided support to the grassroots OLPC France and G du cœur organization, in order to achieve a successful deployment of 100 laptops to a small village Nosy Komba in Madagascar. Other ongoing OLPC France projects include translation and development of the educative platform Sugar, support and repairs for the XO laptops, and a possible deployment of laptops to Morocco with evaluation, paired with a class of kids in a school in France also using the XOs. With Arkamys' expertise in the field of signal processing, it is also hoped that one day we can contribute to the improvement of the platform Sugar in terms of sound.
